Ranking

I don't know if someone else already asks for a ranking.

Implementing a global ranking can change a bit the way to play that some players have in this game. Not playing with money let people plays Allin with everything (and maybe win with everything)
If there would be a ranking where people takes points for placements in tournaments maybe they will not play in that stupid way ... because they lose places in the ranking. And then maybe the possibility to open tournaments only for 100 best or something like this so that the game could be similar to real poker.

I hope you understand what I mean :blush:
Thanks

Yeah i would like that too, means you win for something more than just fun.

But it might be possible to somehow make yourself first by hacking.:dry:

Yes I know...infact mine was only a suggest of an idea to change the goal of the players. I hate when I create a table and someone enter and go ALLIN at first hand with shitty cards (and maybe wins). This is not real .. it is far from being real. I would ask the developer to think about something that could limitate these stupid behaviours and make the game more real.
The ranking was only an idea, maybe they could create some tournaments where people gain points or prices ...

I agree. So many players go all in first hand to see if they can double up. If they lose they just join another tournament. Personally I don't see how this is enjoyable for them and it certainly frustrates everyone else. At least if points were on the line there may be some incentive not to.

A few things about points though:

- 1) Use an Elo system.
  - 2) Make sure the points file is encrypted at least, hopefully using the username in the key somewhere so that if one player gives their points file to someone else then at least they have to use the same username.
  - 3) This system might still be able to be abused with the kick feature
